

A note about our wine programme

Wine lists evolve over time to compliment a restaurant's style and tone, as well as the ever changing taste of the public at large.

Our list here in West Restaurant is designed to mirror the restaurant's dining menu - sophisticated yet accessible, as well as taking inspiration from around the world. As with our menu, we change our wine list monthly to reflect the season. Therefore, even our long-time friends may want to take a close look.

For any taste, meal or mood, an array of possibilities awaits. If you would like assistance with your selection or care to have a Fine Vintage Port or Wine decanted prior to your arrival, please speak to Mathieu, Fergal or I or any member of our knowledgeable team.

Please use us to help you with a wine recommendation and introduce you to something new. Trust us and try a varietal you have not tasted before. The grape varietal is the DNA of the wine. This is where the fun begins with wine and it is where you will learn the most from your time with us.*

As one of Ireland's first restaurants to begin using the Coravin wine preservation system, we are delighted to be able to offer you a glass of any of our premium wines. So you can now taste that bucket list!

I hope we have created a wine list that is both enlightening and entertaining. I wish you memorable tasting pleasures.

Dive into the blue with Canto 5, a Spanish blue wine, exclusive to The Twelve

The Twelve, with its usual quirky and intriguing take on all things food and wine, is serving a new wine that drinks like a rosé, but looks like nothing you've ever seen. It's bright, vivid, sparkling blue.

Back in the bad old days in Ireland your only options when choosing wine were black or blue –

Black Tower or Blue Nun. Since those benighted times though, the Irish have become sophisticated and appreciative wine consumers, up to speed on all the latest wine trends. So for those done with Zin, bored with Beaujolais or blasé about rosé this summer, The Twelve has the wine for you.

From Bodega Diez Siglos de Verdejo in D.O. Rueda, Canto 5 is fun, frivolous and freshly fruity, and also quite low in alcohol making it the perfect summer drink.

An 80% Verdejo and 20% Sauvignon blend, the bright blue colour of Canto 5 comes from the natural anthocyanins in grape skin, boosted by an additional natural food colouring, just for the fun of it.

Night harvested, gently pressed then fermented at a very low temperature without additives, maintaining the freshness and the acidity of the grape, Canto 5 is clean, bright and alive with aniseed, mineral and citrus notes with shades of apple and tropical fruits leaving a honeyed finish.

Off-dry, with a slight acidity and a gentle sweetness that makes it very pleasant and refreshing, Canto 5 has an alcohol content of 5.5% and, if you closed your eyes, you'd think you were drinking a fresh, chilled rosé. With your eyes open, you're seeing the bright blue summer sky in your glass.

Canto 5 is €5.50 per glass or €25 per bottle and is exclusive to The Twelve. It's also available to take away for €15 per bottle – a certain conversation starter or head turner at any party. Try The Blue Wine Sangria made in our bar.

Champagne and Sparkling

What is it about Champagne?

Clearly not just the physical effect of the alcohol lurking behind the bubbles. In most circumstances even the sound of a cork popping lightens the mood and provokes an immediate sense of expectation. With a flute of Champagne in hand, the young feel wisely witty, the old feel young and everything is better looking.

Picpoul

A grape variety grown in the warm sunny Mediterranean. It has a remarkable freshness and citrus flavours. Indeed, anyone in doubt of this grape's freshness can look to its Occitan origins for a translation – lip stinger – so called for the grape's high natural acid content.

533	Perlage, Italy 2020, Organic	29.00

Grillo

Grillo is a Sicilian white grape variety most famous for its role in the island's fortified Marsala wines. It is still widely planted on Sicily despite Marsala's fall from fashion, and is now used most commonly in a variety of still white wines, both varietal and blended. Grillo, when vinified to a high standard, makes a fresh, light white wine with nutty, fruit-driven flavors that include lemon and apple.

Verdejo

With the help of French oenologist Émile Peynaud In 1980, white wines from the Rueda region of Spain were recognized by a Denominación de Origen (DO). The Verdejo grapes are generally harvested at night. This means that the grapes enter the cellar at the lower night-time temperature of 10–15 °C instead of the daytime temperature, which can be as high as 28–30 °C in September. Lower temperatures mean less oxidation and hence Verdejo wines are aromatic, often soft, and full-bodied.

With and Without Skins / Rosé

In most countries, the blending of red and white wines to make rosé is illegal. The following quality roses are made by the saignée method. The juice is left in contact with its red grape skins for a small period of time. It is then separated and fermented without the skins.

Gamay

A light wine with a great deal of fruit. Expect strawberries, black pepper, and cherries, boiled sweets.

The perfect choice for those who prefer a light red wine with their meal.

608 Lucien Lardy Beaujolais - Village 2020 31.00

Very pretty floral highlights. The fruit is ripe and powerful and smacks of blueberries. Sweet and persistent aftertaste.

No, Beaujolais isn't only Beaujolais Nouveau. And, even if this is the most famous ambassador of the Pays Beaujolais, there is no reason to forget the other appellations. The Beaujolais Crus, Brouilly, Chénas, Chiroubles, Côte-de-Brouilly, Fleurie, Juliénas, Morgon, Moulin à Vent, Régnié, and Saint Amour and the 10 Beaujolais Crus that are the jewels in Beaujolais' crown. It's well worth the wait if you leave them in the bottle for a few years. Connoisseurs wait for the spring following the harvest before tasting them. They wait for the Beaujolais Crus to have "done their Easter duty" (fait leurs Pâques) as the winemakers say. This means that the Crus have reached maturity and can be appreciated at their full value.

“We are born at a given moment, in a given place and, like vintage years of wine, we have the qualities of the year and of the season of which we are born. Astrology does not lay claim to anything more.” – Carl Jung

Pinot Noir

Pinot Noir, 'the hearth break grape', is a wine of depth and quality. Captured within the brilliant ruby color are flavors and aromas of ripe fruit, dark chocolate farmyards and delicate spice. When well made, it produces wines which are ethereal to taste. These tastes and aromas unite in complexity to stimulate the mind and senses. Pinot Noir is wonderful with the Irish Salmon or Connemara Lamb

Pinot Noir - from Burgundy

Burgundy is in some ways the most terroir-oriented region in France; immense attention is paid to the area of origin, and in which of the region's 400 types of soil a wine's grapes are grown. As opposed to Bordeaux, where classifications are producer-driven and awarded to individual chateaux, Burgundy classifications are geographically-focused. A specific vineyard or region will bear a given classification, regardless of the wine's producer. This focus is reflected on the wine's labels where appellations are most prominent and producer's names often appear at the bottom in much smaller text.

The main levels in the Burgundy classifications, in descending order of quality, are: Grand crus, Premier crus, Village appellations, and finally regional appellations

Corvina, Molinara, Rondinella Blend

There are very few wines that evoke as many emotional reactions as the Italian Amarone. What makes Amarone unusual is that after the harvest the grapes are placed on mats and set in warm rooms to dry for five or six months until they are converted to ultra sweet raisins. Sometimes the grapes are even attacked by botrytis, the noble mold from which the world's great sweet wines are made. Despite that, once made into wine those hyper-sweet grapes yield a wine as high in alcohol as 17% that by its very character has a distinctly bitter character, and bitterness is the most controversial of all the basic tastes, in some recalling the atavistic reaction of primitive man who associated that taste with poison, in others calling to mind the more unpleasant moments of childhood. To enjoy bitterness, a developed taste indeed, one must overcome the basic pleasures granted by sweetness and Amarone, the very meaning of which in Italian is "the big bitter" is the wine to do this with.

Cabernet & Claret

A wine built to age needs tannin and acidity, and the fruit and extract to keep up with them. Cabernet has all of this in abundance. It produces dark, tannic wine with a strong initial acid attack followed by pure blackcurrant fruit. When aged in new oak it can be stunning.

Art is the blending of grapes in order to produce a wine greater than the sum of its parts. Some of the greatest wines in the world are examples of this art. Nowhere truer is this than in Bordeaux.

Here's hoping you enjoy and appreciate the following examples of some of the very best in the world.

740	Sassicaia, Marchese Incisa della Rocchetta, Bolgheri, Italy 2003 Marchese Mario Incisa della Rocchetta of the San Guido estate, was the pioneer who introduced non-native vines into the Italian wine scene. For more than twelve years following WW2 he experimented in creating Sassicaia, a unique Cabernet Sauvignon based Bordeaux-style wine. It wasn't however until 1968 that Sassicaia was first offered on the open market. The rest of course is history... Sassicaia is the only wine produced at Tenuta San Guido. It's current blend is at least 85% Cabernet Sauvignon and up to 15% Cabernet Franc. About 15,000 cases of Sassicaia are produced annually from the low-yielding vines. The fermentation takes place in large stainless-steel vats. The wine is then Aged in French oak barrique, a third of which is new. This is the first and most loved 'Super Tuscan, wine and is fondly known as 'Sass' on the other side of the Atlantic.	390.00

Cabernet, Merlot, Cabernet Franc Blends – From Napa

In the late 1960's, while attending the university of California at Davis, Christian Moueix fell in love with the Napa Valley and its wine. Son of Jean-Pierre Moueix, the famed wine merchant and producer from Libourne, France, Moueix returned home in 1970 to manage the family vineyards, including Chateaux Petrus, La Fleur Petrus, Trotanoy in Pomerol and Magdelaine in Saint Emilion.

His love of Napa Valley lingered and, in 1981, he discovered the historic Napanook Vineyard, a 124 acre site west of Yountville that had been the source of the best valley wines of the 1940s and 1950s. In 1982, Moueix entered into a partnership to develop the vineyard and, in 1995, became its sole owner. He chose the name 'DOMINUS' or 'LORD OF THE ESTATE' in Latin to underscore his long standing commitment to stewardship of the land.

The most celebrated most expensive white wine in the world. Thomas Jefferson once ordered 250 bottles of the 1784 vintage for himself and additional bottles for George Washington. However, at that time the technique of allowing noble rot to infect grapes had not yet been discovered, so the wine Jefferson was drinking was a different sweet wine. After over two centuries of improving and refining the wine, I am sure Donald Trump would order the same quantity today if he were able to afford it! Remarkably, the size of Château d'Yquem was, however, the same size in 1788 as it is today.

The 1811 Château d'Yquem exhibited what wine experts like Robert Parker has described as exceptional longevity with Parker scoring the wine a perfect 100 points when tasted in 1996. In 2006 a 135-year "vertical" (containing every vintage from 1860 to 2003) was sold by The Antique Wine Company in London for $1.5 million, one of the highest prices ever paid for a single lot of wine. Also that year, Dior and Château d'Yquem teamed up together to create a unique skin care product made from the sap of the Yquem vines. (Our seaweed baths are just as good!!!)
